Student Life

The thirty-eight year old halls of North Side High School reflect not only "the golden days of Spring," but also lasting friendships, academic achievements, citizenship honors, the happiness of victory, the sorrow of defeat, and other unforgettable experiences.

We never tire of the bubbling atmosphere of the halls—the laughter, noise, and nonsense which relieve the tensions of the classroom.

In these halls we have grown into more mature persons--ready to seek our new environments with confidence in ourselves and anticipation for the opportunities which await us. As we go on to our higher goals we shall never forget the happy years we spent at North Side, for "in her halls are fondest memories."

... 'the golden days of Spring' ...

Spring recalls some of the happiest, most exciting times at North. Students often walked outside the Dome with books in one hand and an ice cteam cone in the other. The seniors can recall being on the staggered 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. schedule which was in effect their three years of high school. Sophomores, juniors, and teachers, on the other hand, anticipate in the next school year, the regular 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. schedule shared by other schools. Several 'Skins could also be found this time of year in line at the Youth Employment Service agency seeking summer jobs, or gathering with friends at the last minute to sign Legends before the Dome's doors closed for the summer

"Our river" reflects many happy memories of the "golden days of spring" and our years at North Side.

Students strolling at leisure on a warm spring afternoon capture the envious attention of those still in school.

After being confined all winter, Redskins welcome a chance to go outside during the first brisk days of spring.

With several new students and teachers, the extension of friendship was an ever important factor throughout the year. Student Council members wore red feathers the first few days of school and served as guides, thus extending a helping hand at the very beginning. Back To School Night, with FTAer's as guides, brought teachers and parents to a closer relationship.

Being one of the most active years ever to have occurred at North, '65 found most every weekend scheduled with at least one activity. As 'Skins planned and participated in many of these activities, their gathering helped to strengthen their friendships. Crowded halls and classrooms and a busy cafeteria all revealed that no student should have lacked a number of people from which to choose his friends. The large student body — largest in the city, in fact — added to school spirit and cooperation rather than to confusion as might be expected.

Friendships formed at the Dome often last a lifetime

... academic achievement ...

Following tradition, seniors assemble at the steps of the Dome during their final assembly and the planting of the ivy.

Senior Greg Crawford, a member of the three-year honor roll, gazes wonderingly at the books he has used throughout his high school career.

Rewards definitely came to those students who were eager for education and had a genuine desire to extend their knowledge. Outside activities, such as clubs (including the newly formed Z-Club and the re-established Youth Looks at Communism Club) and High-Quiz, afforded opportunities to all three classes of Redskins to achieve a well-rounded academic life and gave them a chance to appply their learning to situations other than the classroom. The class of '66 exhibited its fine student leaders with 1% of the students receiving Tri-Kappa awards. North was also proudly represented by three National Metit semi-finalists, and nine students in the upper one per cent of the class from its class of '65.

National Merit semi-finalists, Steve Moore, Sam Hyde, and Eric Caple, exemplify good study habits in the use of the school library.

The local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution chose three senior girls as best citizens this year. The qualities on which they were judged were dependability, service, personality and unselfish interest in family, school, community, and nation. The D.A.R. award, the Good Citizen award, and the Spirit of North Side were the honors in the order in which they were given. Similar qualities were used in considering boys for the Kiwanis Award, the D.A.R. award, and the Spirit of North Side. Seniors alone enjoyed the privilege of electing these six outstanding students from their class, with the final approval of the winners and their order of awards coming from the faculty.

Representing the ideals of citizenship are Diane Friend, Cindy Pattengale, and Pris Houts, who won DAR honors and recognition.

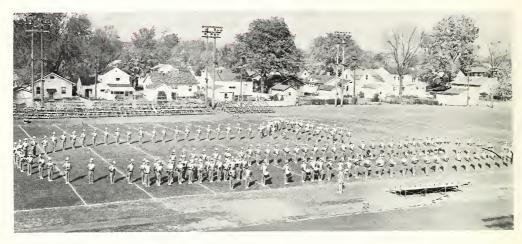

Exemplifying superior citizenship traits enabled Greg Crawford, Dave Moser, and Graham Richard to receive DAR, school, and Kiwanis awards.

Dave Switzer actively leads one of the many discussion groups after the leadership development program, "Direction One."

... happiness of victory ...

The Marching Band forms a trombone, one of many acts it performed for the NISBOVA contest and football half-time displays.

The expressions on the faces of these girls' cheerblock members exemplify their happiness as the Redskins take over the lead.

This year's Northeastern Indiana School Band, Orchestra and Vocal Association contest produced a first division win for the marching band plus several first division solo contest winners. Approximately 200 girls and 100 boys proudly backed our school through cheerblocks at basketball events. Though the blocks were well organized, confusion reigned when cheers such as, "Flea Fly" were introduced. Even in the wild jubilation of 300 voices during a victory, "Varsity" could still be heard being chanted over the cheers. Victory came hard for the debate team; but, as in other events, the less victory is tasted, the more meaningful it seems to be when it is experienced.

. . . sorrow of defeat . . .

Dave Stephan, wearing a cheerblock hat, reflects the anxiety felt by Redskins backing their team in a close basketball game.

Redskins were constantly reminded to carry out good sportsmanship and will be thankful they were taught how to lose an event, sports or otherwise, and accept it, because they can apply this lesson of sportsmanship to life. This year separate boys' and girls' cheerblocks and the pep band contributed grearly to game spirit. The Student Council Sportsmanship Committee successfully sold red and white buttons saying "North," which displayed the fact that 'Skins fully backed their teams. December 26 found many students attending our first Huntingron Invitational in many years. '65 also saw rennis viewed for the last time as a fall and spring sport, with the later season its only action time now.

Cheerblock members tensely watch as North Side loses its narrow advantage after a free throw bounces off the rim.

... and other unforgettable

For the first time since North opened, doors stayed closed because of the heavy snow which covered the entire midwest.

From the first day we walked into classes as sophomores with lipstick-smeared faces, to the last day of our senior year when we departed from our classes with faces looking to the future, we could not soon forget the numerous impressions North had left in our minds. Many can recall twelve senior homerooms squeezed into the cafeteria; assemblies being presented twice because the auditorium could not seat everyone at once; double parking due to crowded parking conditions; student council, fine arts, and journalism trips; Sadie Hawkins dance and other dances to choose "Mr. Irresistable" and "Bachelor of the Year." These, indeed, made 1965 an "unforgettable experience."

Swooning admirers eagerly surround "Bachelor of the Year," Al Crawford, at a dance sponsored by the Key Clubs.

Ask any North Sider how to solve the parking problem, but don't be surprised at the answer!

Academic

The transfer of knowledge is the main business of the school. Learning comes about by the passing of ideas, from teacher to student, from book to student, and from student to student. The knowledge and understanding gained in the classrooms and halls prepares students for their individual future plans. Today's world requires that an individual possess at least elementary concepts of the principles of mathematics, science, English, the social sciences, and the arts. Each of these highly complex fields is broken down in the teaching process to simplified terms. Words, the phrases and sentences they form, and the meanings of these sentences construct the bridge from ignorance to knowledge, thus enriching life.

Paul Helmke supplies a colorful comment to a poetry discussion during Mr. James R. Lewinski's English class.

'Skins Read, Write Extensively; Increase interpretation,

"Andy, the Panda Bear," one of the many short stories written by this sophomore English class, will be read by some hopitalized child.

Toni Kring finds a wealth of material from which to select information for her short story, essay, and poetry reports.

Conquering classroom confusion, these sophomores retreat to the hall to practice their presentation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

Self-expression Abilities

English is one thing we all have in common. Not only do we speak that language, but we are required to take at least seven semesters of it. In following the revised city-wide course of study, our English Department did not forget the basic rules that we have to know about grammar.

We still memorized and read parts of "Julius Caesar," but with the added aid of a recording of this famous play as done by professionals. The "Atlantic Monthly," supplied at no extra cost to our scholars, was provided to study the contemporary writers of today.

Seniors will never forget those short stories, poems, and essays they analyzed in English 7; nor will they forget the impressive "F's" received for just one run-on sentence.

Underclassmen worked hard too. Teachers, realizing what lay in store for their students, bombarded them with knowledge in every aspect of our English language. Literature told us the thoughts of the past, and our own individual thoughts were set down in compositions. Language, spelling and vocabulary were always stressed in order to build and maintain a generally good English skill.

The library offers Michael Wall essential reference material for work on an English term paper.

Introductions to Culture, Tongues of Foreign Countries

Foreign language comic books increase comprehension and understanding of the new tongue; that is, if you get the right book.

Miss Frances Plumanns isn't yelling at her French class . . . she's leading them in the French song, "In a Tiny House."

A subject has been added that is foreign to the history of North Side. Now we can communicate in four languages, French, Spanish, Latin, and, most recently offered, German. Although four years of each language were presented, German in its experimental year, was a beginner's course. Two classes, taught by Mr. Leslie Roberts, learned the basic fundamentals of speech and comprehension of the German language.

Emphasis was given to the cultures of the romance languages, Spanish and French. Mr. Ramiro Ramirez, a new teacher from Cuba, helped the students to understand how people in other countries really live. The stories translated in the books have a lot to do with the customs of the country under study, and add a lot to our understanding.

Strains of Christmas music drifted down the halls, adding to the spirit of the holiday season. Even Christmas cards, adorned with Latin phrases, decorated the teachers' rooms in festive colors. These touches combined to greatly increase the universal tradition of Christmas.

"Sprechen sie deutsch? Ja" says Mr. Roberts, instructor of the newly formed German class, as he uses a map to explain his lecture.

Breaking the pinata is an old Spanish Christmas custom. When burst, the pinata yields "goodies" and a scramble follows.

Pam Richard ignores John Stubbins' example of Roman warfare and strikes out on her own by stabbing Tom Beaver.

In conjunction with textbook study and lectures, Miss Jane Felger uses duo-language maps to help explain the culture of our Spanish-speaking neighbors in the West Indies.

An interested class listens as Mr. Myron Henderson carefully explains the pyramid-like structure and functions of our Indiana and federal courts. Each graduating senior is required by law to have at least one semester of government.

Years and Years of "Current Events" Combine to Create

North's social science classes prepared students to better understand the principles of our country's government. We studied America's principles compared to those of civilizations of the past and those existing today.

World History presented the development of man from his Cro-magnon state to his highly complex society of to-day. The study of past civilizations helped us to evaluate our government which received thorough study in United States History. This class not only developed the American view-point, but also explained the history of our country's relationships with other world powers, past and present. Students probed the Constitution and found the basis for our democratic form of government. To gain further insight, many outside sources were sought as material for reports at the end of each unit.

When the history and fundamental policies of the United States had been learned, students were ready to delve into the real workings of our government. In the one semester course, the three branches of the government were studied in detail. Economics was also studied in the senior year and was a prerequisite for graduation. It concerned the ways people make a living, and how they spend the money they have earned. This envolved the laws governing the supply of, and demand for, commodities.

Another course that could have been elected was Geography and World Affairs. This year's classes heard foreigners speak about the current political situations in their native countries. Other electives were Civics and Sociology.

"We have nothing to fear but fear itself," quotes Mr. Waveland Snider as he explains Franklin Roosevelt's policies to a U.S. History class studying the second world war.

Term papers involve many long hours spent in accumulation of ideas, in library research, and in writing rough drafts.

Past History Studied Today

In their economics class Linda Boxell helps Bruce Lee plot the decreasing course of stock on the New York Exchange.

Al Hein finds his hands full of economics as he switches from government to economics at mid-semester.

Mathematics, Sciences, Used in Correlation with Each

As zoology student Tom Walton probes the internal anatomy of a fetal pig, his lab partner Ron Van Ryn prepares to record.

Although all science courses were electives, more than 600 persons enrolled in at least one of the courses. North, as a result, had an accelerated program in the science fields. For instance, we are the only school in the city that offers a Zoology course. We also have a program arranged for those planning to continue into the science field who have had at least two previous years of work within the department. Besides helping their teachers with beginning classes, these students worked as lab assistants on projects pertaining to their particular area of interest.

To enrich the many facets of science study, the department has acquired new equipment: the chemistry and physics rooms have new periodic wall charts as well as a variable-phase wave generator. Botany and zoology classes have the added convenience of an overhead projector and an autoclave, which sterilizes instruments with high pressure steam.

The many lab periods offered in physics, chemistry, zoology and botany were a boon to the relationships the sciences have to our world. True, we gave these "plain, old things" scientific names and tried to memorize them; but these things are our environment, and we can't live without them.

Concentrating on his lab experiment, Ben Martin selects the needed ingredients from an assortment of acids and bases.

Other, Combine Past Advantages, Future Possibilities

To be eligible for the most advanced classes in the mathematics department a student must have been on an advanced program in junior high, and have taken all of the subjects offered in the normal three year math curriculum.

This course in itself, however, was quite complex. Following a two-semester battle with elementary algebra, and another two semesters of plane geometry, the math enthusiast found himself ready to enroll in one semester of advanced algebra. The next math courses, if not algebraic, envolved the relationships of figures to other figures. Generally, the more advanced courses just delved deeper into what we have already learned in math.

Each additional course strengthened the students' background in math. Eventually some of the things we believed and took for granted were torn apart and we had to prove them. Gradually, if the mind is alert, more theories are doubted and, subsequently, rechecked and re-proven.

Finally, trigonometry student Rick Altekruse arrives at the conclusion that all of his hard work amounts to absolutely nothing.

Framed! . . , and by an isosceles triangle at that!

Algebra often presents such thought provoking questions as the one Jim Busche asks Mr. W. H. McNeely about logarithims.

In clerical practice, June Held finds that filing is vital to efficient office work.

Vicki Hartwig finds that developing the correct typing position is essential to becoming a proficient typist.

Standard Methods, Codes

The business classes prepared students for their future work regardless of occupation. It explained the minor steps of business used in any type of work. The service center was an experiment used for the first time this year. Girls from the clerical practice classes took turns using the ditto and mimeograph machines to help the teachers with their paper work. While not working in the service center the girls worked transcribers, and filing to prepare them for work in an office.

Typing, the most populated of the business classes, taught the students the fundamentals of touch typing.

Bookkeeping gave practice in dealing with record keeping of personal and business income. The study of general arithmetic problems from a business standpoint was the basic outline of business arithmetic.

Selling taught students the methods of merchandise and marketing and acquainted the students with advertising, displaying, and the proper sales approach.

Shorthand, general business, and business law were among other courses studied in the business classes.

Business student Sue Beamer, newly acquainted with the adding machine, finds that it is a very useful device for checking to see if her calculations agree with those of the machine.

Since the hunt-peck method is unacceptable in the business world, students practice diligently to become accurate, efficient touch typists.

Journalism, Speech, and Dramatics Teach Us To Express

Journalism students spend Thursday afternoon folding an infinite number of Northerners to be distributed the next day. Galleys of "Legend" and "Northerner" proofs must be checked for errors by at least three people before being sent to press.

Conveying news and other information to the public in the most interesting way was the main function of journalism students who worked on the Legend, "Northerner" and News Bureau. All students in the journalism department took an active part in some phase of work on one of the publications.

Finding interesting subject matter and learning to write the gathered material in a factual and complete manner were fundamentals learned and practiced by all student journalists. After studying the work of professional journalists and learning to evaluate news, the students practiced writing their own stories. They followed the same procedure when studying leads and headlines. The students also learned proofreading and copyreading symbols and put their knowledge to practical use while preparing the "Northernet" and Legend for final dummies which go to the printer.

Many editors use journalism periods to write their columns or put their pages together. Laurie Popp sets a good example.

Ourselves Clearly and Effectively Before Any Audience

While speaking or acting on a stage in speech or dramatics classes, many students experienced the effects of stage fright. As they became more accustomed to being before their classmates, their symptoms disappeared. They were then able to concentrate on perfecting their abilities.

The speech classes emphasized the basic skills for formal and informal speaking. Formal speaking developed the skills for Parliamentary procedure and debate. Informal speaking emphasized bodily action, voice inflection, and speaker-audience relationships.

Dramatics presented a background of the theater, gave the students an opportunity to act before an audience, and acquainted the students with all phases of stage production. Each student was eligible to try out for the school plays and any other performances presented by the dramatics department.

Dramatics isn't all glamour and grease paint. Zeke Monnot and Jeff Meek help by constructing props and setting the stage for all plays.

Russ Heffly delivers an animated portrayal for fellow dramatics students.

Creativity, Interpretations Inspire Redskins to True

Imaginative minds and talented fingers go together to create a work of art. Students enrolled in the art classes applied these qualities, to create various types of art work. The beginning classes developed the students' artistic abilities with basic art projects, such as scenic painting, simple sketching, or work on enameled ashtrays. Advanced students worked on more specialized items, such as life drawings and detailed enameling and painting.

In the early fall and late spring, the students took advantage of warm weather and moved their easels outside. Each painted his own view of the bridge, the river, or the school building. In the winter they were forced inside the Art Annex, Mr. Donald McClead's room, or to Miss Marjorie Bell's room. Here the students used their imaginations to make mental pictures of objects to be enameled, or put in ceramic pieces. Lettering, sketching, poster construction, and silk screening provided work for the remainder of the year.

A course in Art Appreciation made students more aware of what is around them, and enabled them to better understand the great works of the masters.

Perfection, Real Enjoyment

Everything has changed in the music department. Three new teachers, Mr. David Platt, Mr. Gary Smith, and Mr. Willard Holloway, took the controls to guide North Side through a successful year.

These three men worked together to promote the philosophy of unity between the choirs, bands, and orchestras. They encouraged persons interested in both groups to join a vocal as well as an instrumental organization.

Orchestra widened its scope of learning by offering a training group for students who were not ready for Concert Orchestra. Each member of the string section had the chance to work on chamber music with a string quarter. This type of literature can not be included with orchestral playing because it loses half of its interpretation with a number of players If chamber music is to be included, it must be done outside of class period, in small groups.

A new Theater Arts course has been included in the music department. Mr. Platt worked with Mr. James Purkhiser and Mr. Donald McClead, to give all phases of theater work, including music, staging and scenery.

Cindy Pattengale plucks the strings of her bass as she practices her part in "Victory at Sea."

Home Economics, Industrial Arts Provide Foundations

Besides learning dressmaking techniques, junior Pam Wagner also supplements her wardrobe with her home economics projects.

As the sewing machines buzzed and the water boiled, girls and even a few boys in the home economics department learned about food, clothing, and home management.

The food courses included classroom discussions on the selection of food, the rules of etiquette, and serving food in an attractive way. The girls were then ready to prepare the food ranging from simple things such as cookies, to a complete meal. Each girl had to eat what she cooked.

The clothing section emphasized the selection and care of clothing along with garment construction. The girls became acquainted with the different fabrics and each selected material to make a skirt or dress.

In order to get a male viewpoint on such topics as personality development, dating, marriage, and family life, about half of each class on family living was comprised of boys. These topics are just as beneficial to boys as to girls.

Home nursing and child development dealt with the care of little children and of patients suffering from common diseases such as measles, chicken pox, and the flu.

In family management the students learned how to gain the greatest satisfaction from the available resources in a home life, and to create a pleasant atmosphere at all times.

Contributions from boys in home ec. classes give a two-sided view to family life. Panel discussions create an informal atmosphere.

Rick Radu helps keep the tool room in good order. An orderly system simplifies accounting for the tools.

Kenny Putt and Jim Bock absorb Mr. Reynard's explanation of an industrial tool.

Beginning with the basic fundamentals of drawing, building this up to a blueprint, and eventually making a three-dimensional article out of wood or metal, outlined the progress of the industrial arts courses.

Beginning Drawing covered the fundamentals of drawing and the use of instruments. The boys studied sketching, dimensioning, and geometrical relations, and were assigned to design a simple floor plan or an article they could eventually construct. Advanced Drawing entailed an introduction to pencil tracings, blueprinting, and assembly. The boys designed more complicated articles such as a large building plan, and drew up the blueprint for it. They learned how to interpret other building plans and details.

The wood courses introduced the boys to the fundamentals of hand and power tools, they practiced using the machines with scrap wood before they began a required project of a bookcase or a chair. The boys also learned how to repair household articles and how to refinish wood or revise a piece of furniture, such as putting new legs on a table.

The students completed a plan for a particular article in the Metal classes before they began any other work. They planned it out to the smallest detail and then, with the use of all available equipment, laid out the project, poured molds, and welded the pieces together.

Power Mechanics consisted of the study of electricity and motors. Motors is the study of internal and external combustions, and atomic and solar engines. Electricity deals with the properties of electricity and its conversion to practical use. It results in the actual building of a motor.

Faculty

From the custodians who keep the building clean, to the administrators who keep school business on an even keel, each member of the staff, in some way, has the goal of helping students mature. During the twelve years a student works to get his diploma, a teacher is one of the most influencial forces in his life. Realizing this, a teacher tries to do more than present only information. In closer association with his students, a teacher enthusiastically sponsors club activities or quietly gives guidance to a student concerned with plans for his future. In helping students realize their potential, a teacher not only sees them as they are, but as they can be.

Principal Initiates Improvements During His Second Year;

Pausing momentarily from a demanding schedule to welcome some of North Side's many visitors is Principal Bill C. Anthis.

"I have enjoyed most throughout this school year, passing out daily bulletins to the representatives of the homerooms."

Principal Bill C. Anthis feels that personal contact with the students is one of the most rewarding duties of a principal in a large high school. He is eagerly looking forward to a normal schedule next fall because it will alleviate many of the pressures placed on the students and faculty.

Along with the normal schedule, explains Dr. Anthis, will come a renovation project for the building itself. Although we have the new offices and a completely adequate intercom system, we are in store for brighter walls and general reconstruction which should greatly lift the morale of the student body and teachets.

Aside from school activities, Dr. Anthis is active socially in many organizations. Every Monday afternoon he 'gets away" by spending an hour at the Rotary Club. He is also a member of Neighbors Incorporated, the United Community Services, and the Adult Psychiatric Board. Dr. and Mrs. Anthis participate in all school activities as well as joining in bridge games at least once a week. They very much enjoy taking their son to the plays, concerts, and athletic events at North Side.

Mrs. Helen Houts, secretary to Dr. Anthis, finds the assistance of senior Tom Kirk valuable in her busy schedule.

Retirement Plans End the 37-Year Career of North's Dean;

Dean of Students, Mrs. Victoria G. Young, receives a recently typed student profile from the school secretary, Mrs. Mary Kay Shutt.

For many years North's students have depended on the wise counsel of their Dean of Students, Mrs. Victoria G. Young, who retires this year after 37 years of service.

While she was Dean of Girls, Mrs. Young carried out a policy of being available to all students at almost any time; she continued this policy in her capacity as Dean of Students. Students also came in contact with their Dean at the orientation programs which presented pertinent information concerning plans for college-bound students and those with vocational plans. For those who planned work immediately after graduation, Mrs. Young had information as to the criterion for many jobs; for students wishing to receive some type of higher education, she had advice as to which courses and tests were required by specific schools. Scholarship information was passed on to interested persons by the Dean. Mrs. Young also kept a calendar of school events including club activities, assemblies, and special programs.

Mrs. Young's day did not conclude with the ringing of the four o'clock bell. She participated in many school events and enjoyed most of the school sponsored social events as an honored guest.

The Youngs, guests at the Senior Banquet, reminisce highlights of the Class of '65 with senior social chairman, Carl Stevens.

Superintendent, PTA Assist in Forming School Policies

Superintendent of Fort Wayne Community Schools Lester Grile oversees the academic and athletic programs of the city schools.

Mr. Lester Grile, Superintendent of Fort Wayne Community Schools is soon to begin his fourth busy year as the superintendent. Along with his usual duties he now has the added responsibility of newly constructed junior highs and high schools.

The PTA has experimented with something entirely different this year concerning the desire to help the parents in aiding their children scholastically. They organized a meeting combining the parents now attending North Side with "Redskins-to-be" and their parents. Those parents having children presently enrolled in North Side were placed in groups conducted by advisors who aided the parents in preparing their children for college and careers. The parents of the in-coming sophomores were assembled in the cafeteria where they received counseling and were oriented on the traditionally established policies of North Side. During these many discussions, the anxious freshmen were given a complete tour of the building by various members of our Student Council.

As well as trying a new method of getting faculty, parents, and students together, the PTA has taken on added responsibilities. It is customary that the parents sponsor and finance a dance after the junior and senior proms. The parents have now taken complete responsibility for the conduct of the students.

The PTA officers for the 1964-65 school year were Dr. and Mrs. John W. Rousseau, co-presidents; Mrs. Warren Hastings, treasurer; and Mr. By Hey, second vice-president. Absent when the picture was taken were Dr. and Mrs. Donald Painter, first vice-presidents; and Mrs. Cedric Mast, secretary.

Guidance Counselors Aid Students in Deciding Futures

The sectional tournament, hosted by North Side, creates much necessary correspondence for Athletic Manager Mr. Robert Traster.

As he writes a pass to get a student back into class, Mr. Charles Hinton, dean of boys, finds consultations a major part of his day.

In his capacity as guidance co-ordinator, Mr. Max Updike finds that many hours of paper work are necessary.

Throughout high school, students must face problems which they are not able to solve alone. North's guidance staff was willing at all times to assist any student with either personal or scholastic problems. The offices of the guidance counselors were also familiar to students facing dilemmas of scheduling or seeking job opportunities.

Mr. Charles Hinton, Dean of Boys, stood ready to help students. Much of the responsibility of providing remedial guidance, a job which required understanding, firmness, and patience, was Mr. Hinton's.

As Athletic Manager and head of the business departments, Mr. Robert Traster spent much time helping students in those fields. Many students also were able to find parttime jobs with Mr. Traster's assistance. He also conducted the vocational guide program which was continued throughout the year.

Mr. Max Updike, supervised the senior guidance series and the lowa Tests. Throughout the summer he was available to students wishing to reschedule their class program for the coming semester.

Domeland Kept Clean and Well-fed by Cooks, Custodians

Buettner, Ralph Eloph, Jerry Keener.

Fourteen people spend approximately twenty-thousand one hundred and sixty hours every school year emptying wastebaskets; shoveling snow; cleaning blackboards, floors, and walls; replacing light bulbs; mowing the lawns; and attending to other duties. Who are these people? They are North's twelve custodians and two matrons. Working long after pupils have left the Dome, the custodial staff keeps North a clean respectable building.

asparagus, fish sticks, and jello were just small portions of the daily menus prepared by the twenty-one members of the cafeteria staff. According to the staff, the most popular Redskin dish was sloppy joes. The cooks had to prepare approximately five hundred of these sandwiches every day for lunch. To serve food more quickly, the snack bar was enlarged and a plate-lunch line was initiated.

Classes

The character image of any school is determined by its student body. Twenty-five hundred individual personalities form the student body of North Side. These personalities meet, grow, and mature in the three years spent in these halls. Sophomores entering the doors for the first time wonder if their large class can ever find unity. Through class elections, parties, classroom activity, sports events, plays and proms, this unity is achieved; so that when these individuals depart from the senior door for the last time, they realize that they are a part of their Class.

Electing our class officers for the last time brought back memories of when

The elected leaders of the Class of 1965 include Rick Parker, Paul Paino, Bruce Davenport, Carl Stevens, Diane Friend, Greg Crawford, and Bob Johnston.

Still the largest class to study in the Dome, we prepared for graduation 840 strong. For each senior, the months prior to graduation held the decisions for his future. Some spent this time visiting college campuses; others sought jobs and opportunities for vocational training. Then came the week of final study, reports, and exams, followed by the reward for months of "seniorities," the traditions of the class poem and the planting of the ivy. And finally, after completing three years of high school, came the long anticipated prom, baccalaureate services, and commencement exercises when we

First row: Mrs. Ransburg, Mrs. Spoolstra, Miss Cleary, Miss Little, Miss Felger, Mrs. Crocker, Mrs. Merriman, Mrs. Baugh. Second row: filed up to receive our diplomas with mixed emotions.

We united to elect our class officers for the last time in October, choosing Greg Crawford, president; Bob Johnson, vice-president; Diane Friend, secretary-treasurer; and Carl Stevens, chairman of the social council. Assisting the officers by serving on the committee for planning all of the social events were Bruce Davenport, Paul Paino, Rick Parker, and Don Rice. Class advisors, headed by Miss Elizabeth Little, aided the social council, officers, and volunteers with plans for the traditional play, banquer, and prom.

Traditional Banquet, 'Moments to Remember,' Prom Follow

"No, No, A Million Times No," a humorous melodrama, was the senior play presented by the Class of 1965. It was performed in the manner of vaudeville and included an oily villain, a heroine who is "pure as the driven snow," her "downon-the-farm" father, several wicked city women, and the heroine's boyfriend. Although the villain tried to win the heart of the heroine and take her father's money, the town folks gor rid of the villain and all lived happily ever after

"Moments To Remember," the traditional senior banquet, will be remembered by the 544 seniors present as a night of mixed emotions toward the past and the present. Mary Nell Albright gave the invocation. After dinner, master of ceremonies, Eric Caple, introduced the three student speakers, Ned Lee, Melody Melchi, and Sam Hyde, who spoke on our class's three years at North Side and the memorable events which took place. After the faculty response by Miss Elizabeth Little, we were entertained by the senior members of Triple Trio and Chansonettes. The banquet was concluded with the benediction given by James Gabriel. The seniors and their dates then danced to the music of the Fugitives at the afterbanquet dance sponsored by the PTA.

Honored gnests at the Senior Banquet listen attentively as Ned Lee humorously recalls memorable events of our sophomore year including initiation, staggered schedules, and our state track championship.

Our second year as 'Skins found us busy electing class officers, maintaining Organizing plans for the year were junior class officers, Connie Colicho, social chairman; Cyndy Lorman, secretary-treasurer; Bob Vegeler, president; and Dave Stephan, vice-president.

With the combined efforts of the student body, junior homeroom teachers, and our class sponsor, Mr. Wade Frederick, we strived to make this year a profitable one.

The first item on the junior class agenda was the election of our officers, Bob Vegeler, president; Dave Stephan, vice-president; Connie Colicho, secretary-treasurer; and Cyndy Lorman, social chairman; together they worked to make our first formal dance, the junior prom, held on May 1, a memorable success.

Side trips to Gettysburg, Mount Vernon, and Richmond bartlefields highlighted the annual social-studies-sponsored trip for juniors. In the main area visited, Washington D. C., we toured the Capitol Building, the National Wax Museum, and Arlington National Cemetery. Also with spring vacation came studying for finals and research for term papers.

As the year drew to a close, we realized that our final year at the Dome was close at hand, and we began to dream of the red carpet, senior privileges, and our futures.

532 Sophomores entered North the last class to attend with split schedules

Being the smallest class to enter North Side in three years seemed to have no effect on the 595 new sophomores. The addition of Snider High School to the Fort Wayne Community School System reduced to almost half the incoming sophomores from Lakeside and Northwood Junior High Schools.

Ten scholastically high students appeared on Hi-Quiz during the months of January and February. They are Cathy Albaugh, Glenn Rossman, Linda Goodwin, Susan Pietras, Richard Day, Kay Benedict, John Pierce, Joel Hyde, John Collins, and Peggy Hastings. Mrs. Delores Klocke, chairman of the class sponsors, helped the class officers plan their Sophomore Party, which was held on May 14. The class officers were: President, Tom Beaver; Vice-President, Mark Sieling; Secretary-Treasurer, Kathy Kruel; and Social Chairman, Ron Gilbert. The Sophomores can now look forward to their next two years at North with regular classes held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Activities

To produce an intelligent, well-rounded person is the goal of the school. While the classrooms provide the academic knowledge, the many clubs and activities at North Side strive to prepare the student for his future environment in society. The 30 clubs range from honorary organizations and a student governing body, to the special-interest clubs which provide the pupil with an outlet for his individual hobby. One may select from this group the activity to which he is able to make the greatest contribution and from which he will derive the most satisfaction and benefit. In this way, he improves both himself and the organization.

Student Council Organizes 52-Family Support; Conducts

Individual and combined efforts of the Student Council officers and the five committees have increased school efficiency, interest, spirit, and patriotism. The officers: Graham Richard, President; Paul Helmke, Vice-President; Priscilla Houts, Secretary; Connie Windmiller, Treasurer; Mike Harper, Patliamentarian; and Scott Schaeffer, Sergeant-at-Atms, worked with faculty advisors Miss Ruth Eudaley and Mr. James Lewinski for the 64-65 year.

The traditional Christmas Bureau project was again sponsored. Guided by the Standing Committee, the student body supported fifty-two needy families.

"Direction One," a project originated this year, featured a series of meetings devoted to developing leadership qualities in the students. The programs were constructed around inspiring and influential guest speakers and discussion groups.

Greatly increased this year was the authority and responsibilities delegated to the committees. Each contributed ideas which improved student life. The Sportsmanship Committee initiated adult and student pledges concerning behavior at athletic events. The Committee on School Improvement hosted a school appreciation week, and painted school plaques, railings, and bulletin boards. Along with supervising a mock election, the Patriotism Committee provided inspirational quotes on bulletin boards, guest speakers for assemblies, and flags for classrooms. Questionnaires and interviews aided the Educational Promotion Committee in their study of the drop-our problem.

Journalists Strive to Create Outstanding Northerner; Are

News editor Barry Smith listens pensively to the advice offered by Northerner student advisor Bob Johnston,

Checking the assignment book and tracing down teachers and students for interviewing were weekly tasks of the Northerner reporters. They faced the responsibility of collecting facts, gathering eye-catching feature stories, and relating events involving students. The initial task accomplished, the editors then worked hard and fast to complete the layout of their pages each week. Although they had to hustle and bustle with the copyreading, writing and rewriting articles, and writing headlines, the Northerner never failed to reach its 1500 subscribers on time.

Bob Johnston served as editor-in-chief for the first semester, and an editorial board consisting of Al Hein, Laurie Popp, and Julie Robinson assumed the responsibility for the second term. The staffs, chosen according to interest and proven ability, consisted of the Journalism students of advisor Miss Norma Thiele.

Managing the Northerner during the second semester was the responsibility of an editorial board. Here, Al Hein and Julie Robinson listen to a question posed by their associate editor Laurie Popp.

Photographers Joe Wellbaum, John Howe, Bob Miller, and Bob Stinson find numerous duties to perform in connection with publication pictures.

Eleanor Howe avidly scans copy for errors. Every Northerner article requires careful and accurate copyreading.

Capable Editors, Co-operative Staff Capture Memorable

While assistant editor Peg Yoder adds some finishing touches to the copy, editor Karen Antrim places a note in a staff box.

Karen Antrim offers her assistance to Sherry Bendure when the problem concerning an academic section deadline arises.

Striving to publish a yearbook truly representative of the 64-65 school year, the Legend staff spent endless hours in accomplishing the thousand and one duties required of a yearbook staff. Staff members set up appropriate pictures, caught ingenious, unexpected poses, wrote and rewrote copy, cutlines, and headlines, to name only a few. Their tremendous efforts were well rewarded when "In Our Halls Are Fondest Memories" was presented to the student body.

A yearbook can be successful only when it is compiled by capable and efficient editors and a reliable, co-operative, and enthusiastic staff such as the one presenting the 1965 Legend. Editor Karen Antrim and assistant editor Peg Yoder chose the following students as section editors: Sue Cole, opening; Jim Lechleitner, faculty; Sherry Bendure, academic; Mary Garman, senior; Lynda Brown, junior; Carolyn Rousseau, sophomore; Sharon Pontius, activities; Rick Parker, sports; Karen Flauding, index; Jackie Scott, advertising; Bill Hastings, business; Wanda Ellert, copy. The remaining staff members assisted the section editors.

Holding the position of copy editor requires Wanda Ellert to spend a great deal of time checking galleys for printing errors.

Publication Department Extends Honors to 28 Journalists

Long, hectic hours spent in writing copy, headlines, editorials, and in editing for the "Northerner" proved rewarding to the students honored by membership in the 1500 Club. A journalism letter and gold jeweled pin was awarded to Bob Johnston for the accumulation of 10,000 points. Special recognition and silver pins went to Nancy Dulin, Al Hein, Laurie Popp, and Barry Smith upon the accumulation of 3,000 points.

Quill and Scroll, the national honorary organization for the publication staff participants and the highest journalistic honor bestowed at North Side, recognized 11 members this year. Membership was open to seniors who did outstanding work in some area of publications. Qualifications also required members to be among the top one-third of their class, and to be recommended by faculty adviser, Miss Norma Thiele.

"Beat" poet Lawrence Ferlinghetti provided material for the program of one of Helicon's meetings. At another meeting the group discussed the novels and short stories of J. D. Salinger, a modern author. Helicon again sponsored their annual infirmary party at the Allen County Home. The residents saw a one-act play depicting the first Christmas. At the traditional Washington-Lincoln assembly, an outside speaker was featured. To make money to carry on its projects, the organization gave a Sadie Hawkins dance. Helicon welcomed new members with a potluck dinner and said farewell to senior members at an annual party. Miss Mable Greenwalt, Mr. Robert Pugh, and Mrs. Marjorie Spoolstra sponsored Helicon's many activities. To join the club an overall English grade average of at least a B-plus was required.

Tennis courts, and projects to make the plans a reality, were first on the agenda for all three groups of Key Club. The three separate groups combined efforts to produce a post-game dance, and later in the year, a fish fry and dance at the sectional track meet. In keeping with their objective as service organizations, the three clubs sanded desks, painted trash barrels for the school, ushered at the Christ Child Festival, painted rooms at Smart School, contributed to the Gallon Donor Club at the Red Cross, and published the ever-useful "Key." Energetic Key Clubites found time plan for their leisure time, and took two skiing trips. At Mt. Holly in Michigan, and Mt. Tamatack, the group practiced the art of relaxation in varied positions while skiing down the slopes.

Conventions provided leadership opportunities for some Key Clubbers. Last summer the district lieutenant governor, Mike Harper, and the fifth period club secretary, Eric Caple, attended the international convention in Dallas, Texas. Many officers participated in the Indiana state convention in Indianapolis during April. At these meetings ideas for programs were combined with group discussions and pleasure.

Old Rome came to life as third and fourth year Latin students presented plays at a JCL meeting which featured the drama and authors of the Roman era. The 60 members of the Junior Classical League participated in other activities which included a Roman banquet and games. The participants and their sponsors, Mrs. Janet Weber and Mrs. Amelia Dare,

Modern Language Club held several activities with the Junior Classical League. Among these were "Vive le Twist," a dance with travel posters for decorations, a Christmas party at which members sang carols in foreign languages and studied foreign Christmas customs, and a spring picnic.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Ramona Ransburg and Mr. Paul Lemke, M.L.C. members pursued their interests in the cultures of countries whose native languages they had studied. Senior Connie Yoder showed slides, related experiences, and exhibited souvenirs from her trip last summer to Mexico.

German students joined M.L.C. in 1965 due to that language's addition to the curriculum.

Butler, Betty Bishop. Third Row: Mr. Lemke, Glenn Rossman, Sam Hyde, Mort Patterson, Barry Sturges, Russ Buchan, Scott Schaefer, Tom Pitser.

"Kaliedoscope" of Activities Highlights Ripplettes' Year

Both Ripplettes and Ripples attend regular practices in order to create graceful and co-ordinated water-ballet formations.

First Row: Carolyn Rousseau, Mary Garman, Eleanor Howe, Nancy Malecek, Parn Klinger, Cindy Pattengale, Karen Jellison, Laurie Wehrenberg, Linda Hasewinkle. Second Row: Kerry McCrory, Barb Under the direction of Mrs. Elnora Gallahue, the Ripplettes worked toward the perfection of their water-ballet skills. While the experienced members practiced the more difficult routines, the new members were selected upon their performance of the basic skills which included hair-pin dives, back dolphins, pike-surface dives, oysters, and sculls.

After conquering the ordeal of the spike period which included wearing a sign signifying club membership, carrying a spike-book, addressing the actives, performing skits, and writing themes, the new members joined with their actives in planning the annual water show entitled "Kaleidoscope."

The show, presented to the public on April 23 and 24, featured routines worked out entirely by the individual group participants. These routines symbolized several different aspects of life including love, religion, and war. By assuming entire responsibility for special effects, the participants gained invaluable experience in choreography, set and costume designing, sound and lighting effects, and in directing. With the aid of Ripples Ken Eckhart, Kent Howenstine, Bob Scott, Steve Hamilton, Ken Powers, and Tom Vacanti, the Ripplettes were assured of a highly successful show.

Schaefer, Sandy Griffis, Liz Nagelson, Laura Tinsley, Rita Adams, Gay Becker, Kathy McConnell, Carol Tomlinson, Cyndy Lorman.

National Thespians, Tri-M Acknowledge Student Abilities

First Row: Jean Larum, Jane Johnson, Cheri Rupert, Linda Hasewinkle, Sylvia Embick, Susan Swaney, Bunny Beights. Second Row: Bruce Woodings, Patti Finton, Rita Frenger, Heather Butler, Ann

Williams, Liz Nagelsen, Jim Hatfield, Russ Heffley. Third Row: Gary Wring, Peg Moriarty, Dianne Scheeler, Donna Pynchon, Mort Murphy, Judy Rhoads.

Stage crews, sound and lighting effects hands, seamstresses, student directors, and performers were all a part of the dramatics department productions this year. Those participants who were outstanding in their field of work were honored by membership in National Thespians. Advisor Mr. James Purkhiser selected members for both productions and Thespian membership. The club created a more active interest in dramatics.

Talent, scholarship, character, cooperation, leadership, and service composed the criterion for membership in Modern Music Masters. Spikes and actives taking part in Tri M were chosen from the Concert Band, Concert Orchestra, and for the first time this year, from A Cappella Choir. New members showed their talent by performing in skits and playing solos. At mid-semester break, the members joined National Thespians for a banquet:

Platt. Third Row: Mr. Holloway, Frank Bryan, Ron Bryan, Eric Caple, Dave Kuebler, Mark Akers, Chuck Briggs, Rick Altekruse, Mr. Smith.

Brush and Palette Patrons Enhance Dome's Appearance

Daffi Dabblers Carol Conard, Jan Weissbrodt, and Margie Laws add decorative touches to a Christmas tree at the Dome's main entrance.

Daffi Dabblers utilized their originality and imagaination when the halls of the Dome were renovated into the traditional Yuletide-style under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Bell and Mr. Donald McClead. The greenery helped stimulet the Christmas spirit throughout the Dome. The task of arranging the displays was completed as the group held a potluck supper in the art annex.

Other services provided by the Daffi Dabblers included painting Christmas scenes on the windows of Parkview Hospital, and making favors for a nursing home. Members rendered these services voluntarily with the incentive of a newly installed point system.

In addition, these talented Redskins created Christmas centerpieces, sponsored a dance, and held a May sale where their individual creations were displayed and sold. The proceeds of these projects went toward the purchase of prints for the main offices and for art equipment. The prints, in effect, improved the appearance of the school and demonstrated the Redskins' interests in art.

Student Tutoring Provides Career Opportunity for FTA

A new student tutoring program, jointly sponsored by Future Teachers of America and the Educational Promotion Committee of the Student Council, gave F.T.A. members a chance to aid dropouts and gain teaching experience. Students volunteering to tutor decided in which subject area they were most competent and were screened by F.T.A. sponsor Mrs. Delores Klocke.

First Row: Bev Schmid, Melody Malott, Becky Stellhorn, Teresa Metzger, Sue Rydman, Sandy Oldham, Judy England, Kathy Hammond. Second Row: Mary Beth Herman, Mary Keirns, Rebecca Dunn, Deborah Doehla, Linda Olsen, Peg Trager, Diane Dirrim, Janice

Other F.T.A. activities included the observation of Teacher Career Month, the Annual Mothers' Tea in October at which the officers were installed and new members initiated, and the "Holiday Hop" featuring the Counts V.

The purpose of F.T.A., according to sponsor Mr. Stanley Voltz, was to learn more about the teaching profession's responsibilities, opportunities, and values in our democracy.

Phy-Chem Donates Valuable Science Equipment to School

Rick Altekruse, Jim Spoolstra, Brian Derbyshire, Mr. Dvorak. Third Row: Dennis Buchanan, Richard Lyon, Bill Engle, Dave Peters, Mike Ellenwood, Thomas Claussen, Terry Atherton, Phil Kemp, Don Akey.

Realizing a need for new material in their classes, students of Phy-Chem supplied new reference books, a microscope, a movie projector, and science films to the equipment available for use in studying physics and chemistry. Although this project depleted the treasury, members sponsored a dance to rebuild the funds.

To add to their scientific knowledge, club members hosted speakers from nationally known agencies and firms.

The year was brought to a close at the annual picnic when participants ate and relaxed as well as elected officers for the next year. Members were composed of students taking chemistry or physics or who had already completed these courses but still had an active interest in science.

Greg Marrs, Mark Seiling, and Bobbi Wire prepare for a future debate by accumulating, validating, and discussing the material.

Paul Helmke and Scott Schaeffer offer their fellow debator Mike Harper the valuable aid of a listening audience to his pre-debate ideas.

Explosive Debaters Dispute Nuclear Weapons Command

"Resolved: rhat nuclear weapons should be controlled by an international organization" was the theme of this year's Debate Club. This topic provided many difficult, stimulating, and educational debates. Substantiating their arguments required the affairmative debaters to create an imaginary international, controlling organization. Both the varsity and sub varsity squads worked diligently preparing for their matches with other schools. Although members attempted to keep the travel radius to a minimum of eighty miles, the many matches kept the eight participants on the go.

The debates were designed to encourage students to see both sides of the issues, and to provide an opportunity for students to test their ideas; therefore all participating debaters were required to alternate their cases from the affirmative to the negative. Mr. Stanley Lee coached his squads to present their arguments in a logical and intelligent fashion. By asking questions, Don Lieberum and Bob Vegeler take advantage of the knowledge and experience of their debate coach, Mr. Stanley Lee.

First Row: Tanya Miller, Billie Joan Morris, Sue Cole, Pam Brown, Kathy Sanders, Kathy Rathert. Second Row: Liz Engeler, Diane Friend, Kay Oser, Carol Conard, Vicki Deahl, Donna Menze, Kaye-

Kensill. Third Row: Russ Buchan, Mort Patterson, Jon Morrow, Sherry Bendure, Sue Sprunger, Penny McKnight, Sallie Lipscomb.

Globe Trotters Study Life Patterns of Communist Aligned

"Making History Come Alive" keyed all activities of the Globe Trotters of 64-65. Activating and directing interests of the history-minded students proved to be a difficult yet successful task for the hardworking members.

Using the theme of Communist satellite countries, sponsors Mr. Harry Young and Miss Ruth Eudaley, along with the executive council, organized intriguing and stimulating programs consisting of films, and of lectures from a State Department translator and a Larvian refugee both of which provided controversial material for group discussions. Another highlight was the December Christmas meeting and skit.

Through the presentation of an invigorating Thanksgiving Assembly program by the Globe Trotter officers, the spirited tradition of the day penetrated the student-body.

Performing at every school concert enabled members of the Training Choir to gain invaluable experience. The choir was formed basically to give experience and training to those wishing to be selected for more advanced singing groups.

A flag ensemble, performed in a district contest at New Haven, won the Indianettes a first place rating. The 14 members of the twirling squad met with Mr. Gary Smith, sponsor, and Miss Sherry Bulock, choreographer, every week to plan new routines.

Members of Varsity Band were very busy this year. All 67 members accompanied the Concert Band to Butler University to march at the half of a football game. They also marched along with the Concert Band in the Veterans' Day Parade, and on January 27 performed in a band concert.

Marching at the football games was a time-consuming yet enjoyable task assumed by the Concert Band. The band was featured at many other events, however. They were the feature band for the Indian Council; they marched with the Varsity Band in the Veterans' Day Parade, and they also performed at the State Band Contest.

Public concerts, too, filled a great deal of the players' time. The group presented concerts in the fall, at Christmas, and in the spring.

In the fall, band members attended the Music Department Picnic; and on December 18, they attended the Music Department Christmas Party. The group's honors banquet took place in May when all of the bands were recognized.

The Concert Band, along with the other bands, is under the direction of Mr. Gary Smith. There were 117 members participating in the Concert Band this year.

Serving God, the community, the school, and each other united the members of the Y-Teens this year. Projects were originated in an attempt to aid the community YWCA; and, at the same time, provide an opportunity for service and enjoyment for the North Side club.

The Y-Teens gave a Christmas party for the Parnell Park Nursing Home where they presented fruit baskets and talked with the patients individually to brighten their Christmas holidays. Members also gave a school dance and participated in a spring potato-chip sale, proceeds of which went to the community organization.

Entertainment was also an important factor in the year's activities. The group held a splash party; and, to emphasize the importance of family participation in activities, a Mother-Daughter Tea and a Daddy-Date Night were sponsored during the second semester.

A Parnell Park Nursing Home resident is thrilled when presented a gift basket prepared by Y-Teens.

Cindy Kumfer, Maureen Coughlin, Ginny Stewart, and Linda Yergens demonstrate their ingenuity by artistically arranging fruit baskets.

Band Peps Up Audiences; Radio Enthusiasts Organize

Providing musical entertainment and promoting school spirit during pep sessions and all home games was the task of the pep band. Besides playing the school song and "Varsity," the group performed lively numbers such as "Jingle Jazz" and "Tequila" for the enjoyment of the spectators.

Directed by Mr. Gary Smith, pep band consisted of fifty members from the Varsity and Concert bands who volunteered their time and talent.

First Row: Dave Uebelhoer, Bill Reeder, Glenn Diemond, Dennis Buchanan, Phil Kemp, Bill Humphries, Adrian Simmons, Steve Skees, Rodney Poinsett, Brian Murray, Randy Upton. Second Row: The establishment of a club station at North Side was the ultimate goal of the newly organized Amateur Radio Club. Sponsor Mr. Ronald Dvorak aided and encouraged all members to further their knowledge of the radio, and to individually receive their radio license which constituted mastering five words per minute of Morse Code. Interested students studied the fundamentals of the radio and viewed movies to increase their comprehension.

November marked the certification of the North Side Z Club, the 46th such club in the United States; and the club was enthusiastically received by the students. The Z Club is a high school branch of the international organization of Zontas, a professional women's organization.

With the motto "Growth Through Service," the club offered their service to the community and school, and developed leadership qualities in the young-women members. Although the first year was devoted primarily to laying foundations and establishing traditions, the group instilled upon the student body their sincere motive to be of service.

Under the guidance of Miss Carol Szink, Miss Diane Cotterly, and Miss Patricia Palmer, the fourth, fifth, and sixth period clubs sponsored several service projects. Their combined efforts enabled many orphans to enjoy a day downtown during the Christmas holidays, and together they also assumed the task of cleaning the pool and shower rooms.

First Row: Cheryl Rogers, Mary Catso, Kathy Anderson, Vicki Swenson, Barb Zion, Patty Werling, Sharon Reuille, Margie House, Pattie Arney, Linda Lantz. Second Row: Betty Cochren, Anita Monnier, Debbie Kern, Jane Thompson, Linda Vaught, Vicki Christman, Sandy

Hopper, Jacquie Headrick. Third Row: Linda Horner, Linda Sloan, Kathy Bashore, Sue Pietras, Marilyn Rollins, Rita Zartman, Berry McCarty, Rosalind Woods.

Active and regular participation in sports is an essential factor in good health. Thus members of the Girls' Athletic Association, under the direction of Miss Ruth Carroll, constructed the year's recreational program around seasonal activities. The importance of team spirit and enthusiasm were stressed when participants engrossed themselves in lively matches of basketball, archery, badminton, and tennis. All North Side girls were eligible to join.

Choreography, technique, and fun were major ingredients of the mid-year show of the Modern Dance Club. Parents were able to see how their daughters were improving their dance skills. Miss Elnora Gallahue sponsored the 15 dancers and aided them in all their projects. Bi-weekly practice sessions gave the club a class status and provided additional time to perfect routines. A party at the end of the year honored the graduating senior members.

First Row: Le-Ann Cline, Nancy Myers, Elisa Graham, Carolyn Rousseau, Marilyn Anderson, Sue Beamer, Betsy Ziege, Mrs. Gallahue.

Second Row: Colette Jehle, Mary Beth Herman, Roberta Crull, Catherine Ebel, Karen Jellison, Sylvia Embick, Linda Hasewinkle.

Sports

Fondest memories of fall, winter, and spring come alive along darkened gym corridors and echo through the deserted stadium, which short months ago rocked with a student body keeping the tempo of football and basketball or tensely absorbed in the cinder action.

To the non-participant, the halls lined with pictures of championship teams and trophy cases of awards won by these outstanding teams or individuals may be mere ornamentation. The athlete remembers not only these, but the also endless confusion of the equipment room, witty signs in coaches' offices, and the weird combination of ointments, liniments, and sweat which make up the musty smell of a locker room.

Ring Victory Bell for City

Encouraged by the prospect of having the best season in years, with the return of many lettermen and last year's promising sophomores, the Redskins retained the city championship for the second consecutive year by defeating Central Catholic and South Side and tying Central in a game plagued by rain.

Participating in the Northern Indiana Conference for the final year, Coach Williams' charges fashioned a record of one win and five losses against such tough teams as South Bend Riley, Washington and Elkhart's mythical state champions of 1963, all of whom finished in the top five teams in the state ratings at the close of the season. This record is not indicative of the actual game play, in that some of the losses were by points after touchdowns or the lack of team effort in isolated instances.

High point of the year was the come-from-behind victory over Central Catholic in which the Redskins scored three touchdowns in the fourth quarter to edge the Irish 21-19 and lay claim to at least a share of the city championship. Bishop Luers shattered all Central's hopes for the tie with a victory over the Tigers the following week.

This season cannot be termed greatly successful by wonlost standards, but the ability to enjoy the game and learn from it will profit Redskins when 1964 is but a memory.

Despite Many Injuries, North Was Tough NIC Contender

Most valuable player and leading scorer Rick Deahl powers his way for necessary yardage and a first down against the tough Riley team.

Line coach John Becker points out previous mistakes and gives instructions to players waiting on the sidelines.

In preparation for the second half, quarterback Rick Parker warms up his arm, while other Redskin team members do calisthenics.

Having received the snap from center, Junior Mark Henry places the ball on the kicking tee as Mike Hanes attempts the extra point.

Taking a pounding from the varsity in scrimmages, the reserves maintained their desire and determination in the hopes of replacing either injured varsity players this year or graduating seniors next year. In drills they were often used as "hamburger," but the varsity truly realized how beneficial the reserves were in raising their spirits and having a successful varsity season.

Although not maintaining the city championship which has been held by North Side for the past three years, the reserve team won a majority of their clashes and through determined effort managed to place a few of their members on the varsity traveling squad at the close of the season.

Coaches Hyrle Ivy and Snitz Snider helped the team develop not only the fundamental skills involved in executing a successful gridiron campaign but also the enthusiasm necessary to mold eleven unfamiliar individuals into one team.

Although hampered by a slow start, the Redskins' young and promising cross country team under head coach Duane Rowe and assistant Bob Walter reached their peak just before the state meet.

The harriers worked out regularly at City Utilities Park and often at Franke and Shoaff parks to familiarize the team with the various courses they would encounter and to gain their season-ending form.

In the sectional at Shoaff Park the team chased Elmhurst to the wire to cop second place. Finishing third to Elkhart and Ashley, the Red and White qualified for the state cross country meet. Although the team finished eleventh at Indianapolis, Jim McCrary grabbed nineteenth place in the eighty-eight man field. McCrary was named outstanding runner and Tom Eichenauer the most dedicated.

Impenetrable Defense Greatest Advantage While Redskins

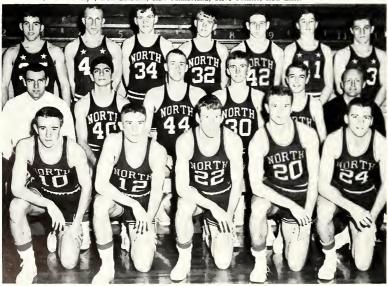

Sights set on the rim, leading scorer Mike Bedree drives around a startled Kokomo guard for an easy lay-in shot.

As anticipated by North's roundball fans, the Redskin basketball team began to finish what they had started in last year's Sectional-to win. However, after being victorious in their first two games by relatively large margins, the hoopsters were brought down to earth by the Central Tigers. Led by Coach By Hey and his assistants, Tom Bolyard and Will Doehrman, the squad then defeated four teams in a row, including a thrilling victory over the South Bend Washington quintet. North was bruised for the second time in the season by New Haven in the Huntington Tourney. Realizing that an opponent will never "play dead" because of a team's record, the 'Skins went on an eight-game winning streak which included revenge successes over New Haven and Central. With four away games remaining, the team still had a mathematical chance to win "city" and was in first place in the Northern Indiana Conference. However, Michigan City continued their home floor domination over their opponents by edging North 90-86. Experiencing a mental letdown, North suffered another close defeat by losing to South Bend Central. Although triumphant in its last two clashes, North, with a record of 6-1, lost the city title to Central and finished second in the final year of NIC participation with seven wins and two losses.

North's success was attributed to team play, a great 3-2 zone, a strong bench, and plenty of experience from last year. Dave Moser and Mike Bedree led the team in scoring, and sportswriters named Dave outstanding local player.

As the cavalcade of convertibles reaches North Side, the team is greeted by a throng of cheering, shivering spectators.

Whoops Echo Through State

The week after North copped only its third Semi-State crown was indeed hectic — students anticipating the trip to Indianapolis . . . teachers trying to keep the students' minds on school work . . . school officials deciding how to hand out 1,000 tickets . . . disappointed fans promising to cheer on the team while watching television.

From buses decorated with red and white signs, the Redskins fans converged on Butler Fieldhouse anxiously awaiting the showdown with the top-rated Roosevelt quinter. Revenging their loss to the Panthers ten years ago, the Redskins' teamwork and defense proved fatal to the tourney favorites.

Facing Indianapolis Washington in the finals, North found that exhaustion from the second game in the afternoon forced a seven point deficit in the last thirty seconds. Tears of anguish and pride welled as the Heymen received their silver rings; sadness was only momentary for when the team returned they were welcomed in a style befitting true champions.

Defeat of Cadets and Eagles Yields Holiday Tourney Title

With the realization that ten of the twelve varsity men who dressed for the Sectional were to graduate, the reserve team members prepared themselves both mentally and fundamentally in their hopes of filling the vacancies to be left by the seniors.

Mr. Will E. Doehrman, a highly respected and successful coach for a county five last year, led the reserves to a record of eleven wins and six losses. Losing the last four games, although they were all played on the home courts of the opponents, somewhat tarnished the team's fine record. However, the reserves managed to bring a few smiles to fans over the holidays, as they added another prize to the trophy case, by capturing the Columbia City Holiday Toutnament.

Managers Serve Thirty-seven Years, Swimmers, One

One of the most unheralded, yet most important, facets of the sports program is the service done by the managers. Spending more time around the athletic facilities than the athletes, these boys perform such tasks as running errands, keeping track of all equipment, and learning to tolerate each athletes idiosyncrasies. Their rewards are few; they work merely because of their desire to be a part of athletics.

Determination and success of this year's swim team organized on a trial basis, under Mr. Harold Clinkenbeard, enabled the athletic department to set up a full schedule for next year. Despite conflicts with other groups using the pool and the temporary closing of the pool, the tankers worked out as often as possible. Practice consisted of frequent races as well as working on turns and special strokes. Although the team lost its only two meets to Goshen and Penn, the twelve-man Sectional squad managed a seventh place out of the eleven teams.

Freestyler Kent Howenstine awaits the starting signal from coach Harold Clinkenbeard in preparation for the state swim meet.

Lacking Experience, Netmen End Fall Season Under .500

Ned Lee's strong forehand shot and agility on the courts enabled him to maintain the number one position throughout the year.

The netmen once again faced the tough Eastern Division of the Northern Indiana Conference resulting in a season remembered for a greater number of defeats than victories. With only three lettermen returning from last year's city championship squad, Coach Myron Henderson found lack of experience to be the predominant shortcoming.

Led by Ned Lee and Graham Richard, number one and number two men respectively, the Redskin netters blanked South Bend Central and defeated South Bend Riley to complete their fall tennis season with a two and six record.

Participating for the last year in the Northern Indiana Conference, North will face only city competition next year.

Golfers Swing Through Third Season with High Hopes

With poor weather conditions changing the sand traps to mud, Dave Moser blasts out of the hazard duting a practice round with Eric Pfister and Jim Fischer at the Elks Country Club.

Concentrating intently, Hank Scheil prepares to putt after Howard Shook and Jim Morris have already holed-out.

Despite bad weather, the veteran members of the golf team and other hopeful prospects began to practice late in March for the upcoming season. With two experienced varsity players returning from last season, lettermen Dave Moser and Hank Scheil, and Eric Pfister, Howard Shook, Jim Morris, and Jim Fischer showing much improvement, all indications pointed towards a successful season.

The immediate success of the team was attributed to the linksmen's determination, desire, and love of the game. They endured such "hardships" as having to supply their own equipment, transportation, and green fees for practice matches.

Before each match, coach Beryl Lewis picked five men to compete, basing his selection on their week's play. Thus, a boy who showed much improvement or had a "hot" hand had a chance to move up to varsity. However, a person once on the varsity had to be ready to meet the challenge of another player. In the meets, each of the five players was paired with an opponent for match and medal play.

Senior sprinter Paul Paino flashes across the finish line as he once again tops the field in the 220 yard-dash.

Indoor meets prior to actual competition on the cinders were the first experiences for many boys, but they gave fine indications of the potential of the squad. At Culver, the team won all events but the half mile, in drubbing a team almost void of veterans. With a better idea of each individual's potential, Coaches Duane Rowe, Bob Walter, and Hyrle Ivy began to temper the workouts to each man's abilities to obtain their best performances. The effects were obvious at the Quadrangular Meet at Notre Dame. Although the Redskins finished second only to Elkhart, they exhibited strength in the distances, hurdles, and the short dashes. Missing record-breaking pole vaulter Dick Junk, the squad's weak point was the field events. Competition in the Hoosier Relays was a source of the much-needed determination and confidence.

The North Side Invitational Indoor Relays at the Coliseum was the first meet of its kind to be held in the Fort Wayne area and its acceptance influenced the extension and improvement of track facilities here.

Relay and Distance Squads Display Evidence of Potential

The only experienced vaulter returning from last year's squad, Mike Sweeny soars over the bar as he practices to improve his form and reach his goal of twelve feet by the time of sectionals.

Mike Hanes, anchor man in the grueling mile relay, approaches the finish with a final, determined burst of speed.

Poised in the starting blocks, junior Bob Smith awaits the starter's signal for the beginning of the 100-yard dash.

Uncoiling to put his entire body behind the lead sphere, junior John McMahan thrusts the shot beyond the fifty-foot mark.

Don Baldwin exhibits the stride and strong tinal kick which enabled him to be a consistent runner and North's top 880 man.

Yells Prove 'We're from North Side, Couldn't be Prouder'

With pride and precision, varsity cheerleaders Becky Van Horn, Linda James, Carol Meyer, Jill Borkenstein, Penny Winkler, and

Jan Armey, exhibited the poise which enabled them to maintain the traditional spirit of the Dome and generate new enthusiasm.

During basketball season, pep leaders Jerry Oswald, Dick Lyons, and Denny Wible complemented Redskin spirit.

Selection as cheerleaders in the spring was only the beginning of a year-round experience for the chosen girls. The Student Council picked them on the basis of personality, ability, character and scholarship, from a final group of twelve contestants. Co-captains Jill Borkenstein and Carol Meyer and other varsity members Jan Armey, Linda James, Becky Van Horn and Penny Winkler immediately began to coordinate themselves as a group and learn new cheers for the coming year. The main source of these cheers was the Smith-Wolbridge summer camp where the new cheerleaders received instruction and the veterans reviewed what they had learned before. With the start of the Jamboree and school they began to cheer at all football and basketball games and to plan pep sessions for all sports.

As an experiment during basketball season, three boys were chosen as pep leaders to instill new enthusiasm at the games through close association with boys' cheerblock and performance of acrobatics.

Youthful spectators typify many older North Side fans. Libby expresses her dissatisfaction with the "crooked ref"; Tim watches with a rhorough knowledge of all rules. Terry is overcome by the noise; while Duff wishes his broken arm would heal so he also could play.

Cheerleaders Travel Over 1,445 Miles to Away Games

Adding inspiration and color to reserve competition at home and away, sophomores Barb Seabury, Earlene Dunbar, Kathy Puryear, and Meg Seabury practice the Redskin Spell-out for an upcoming game.

Boys Develop Strength, Girls Keep Slim and Trim in P.E.

Dividing into "skins" and "shirts," the boys often engage in tug-ofwar to develop arm strength. Besides obtaining blisters on their hands, the losers often receive blisters in other areas as they go through the paddling machine as punishment.

Developing speed, endurance, and agility are the goals the boys' physical education instructors, Mr. By Hey, Mr. Harold Clinkenbeard, Mr. Willie Doerhman, and Mr. Tom Bolyard have set for their young protegees. At the beginning of the year, boys are separated into classes according to their abilities, so that no boy becomes discouraged while competing against those with more physical prowess. Staying in these groups for the entire year, the boys complete the three different phases — physical development, swimming, and sports.

Under the guidance of Miss Ruth Carroll and Mrs. Elnora Gallahue, girls combine grace and poise with knowledge and skill in such sports as volleyball, basketball, archery and speedaway. Tests are given after each unit on both the knowledge and skill acquired in practicing these sports. Some sophomore girls elect swimming in the place of regular gym classes. Besides perfecting various strokes, the girls learn diving skills and water ballet.

In girls' swimming classes, Mrs. Elnora Gallahue directs the sophomores as they co-ordinate the arm stroke of the crawl.

Closing

Three years ago the halls looked foreboding; but as for all classes, the novelty for us soon wore off, and the familiar sounds of laughter and hellos resounded in the corridors. The group of sophomores who entered as strangers departed as friends, with a sense of unity and many cherished memories that would not be erased by time passed or distances traveled.

For almost forty years, Legends have been written in remembrance of the year gone by, collecting first signatures and then dust. One day the dust is shaken off and the annual recaptures the nostalgia of high school days, a past filled with unchanging youth and never-ending good times. We hope to have captured some of the special moments and magic of the year, 1965 — so that when separated by our futures, as we no doubt will be, the memories of "our" year will recreate the emotions and atmosphere of fun, friends, and happy events. North Side will forever occupy a special part of our hearts; for indeed, "in her halls are fondest memories."

Karen and Peg

Florida attracts many sun-worshipping Redskins during spring vacation; Bill "Beachcomber" Leming finds crab hunting an intriguing pastime.

With each new day, month, and season the methods of fun and styles changed. Autumn found many fun-loving Redskins outdoors. That was the time for hayrides, wiener roasts, and rides in the ever-popular convertible. As time progressed and the season changed, the snow-covered winter world beckoned. Outside, many learned the fun of skiing down a slope; inside, others sat by the fire and awaited the tinkle of Christmas bells. The season saw the exit of over-poufed hair. Girls' locks grew and hung smoothly; boys' hair grew too, reminiscent of the Beatle craze. With spring came the hootenanny and bleeding madras. A last whirlwind of activity occupied many as the thoughts of student and teacher alike turned to the nor-so-lazy days of summer.

Seasonal Variations Prove

The casual English look combines with madras and other fads to capture the "in" look.

"In the Spring, a young man's fancy turns to . . . "

No Hindrance to Activities of Fun-loving, Vivacious 'Skins
